

Recreation area scorecard: some open, some closed, some chancy

25 May 1984
 The Memorial Day weekend usually is the first call for outdoors enthusiasts to head for the hills, but with flood and slide danger high in some Utah County areas, County and U.S. Forest Service officials have asked recreationists to avoid most canyons unless it is necessary to travel through them. Some, like Vivian Park, above, are soggy and not conducive to pleasant holiday memories. However, some sites are open and ready for weekend visitors.

A sailboat race at Deer Creek Reservoir is expected to bring boating enthusiasts to the reservoir Saturday and Sunday. Saratoga Resort on the north tip of Utah Lake also was to open Friday, but flooding in the area has made a new route to the resort necessary. The usual route from I-15 through Lehi has been closed at 9550 West. Vehicle now may continue west on Main Street to Redwood Road, then turn left and travel south about two miles to a side entrance. The park is now open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. American Fork Canyon has been closed above Timpanogos Cave National Monument. The Wash Canyon Road has been closed by a landslide, and washouts have occurred along three sections of the Nebo Loop Road and portions of the Diamond Fork River road, the Sheep Creek road, the Squaw Peak Trail road and the right fork of Hobbie Creek road.

to recognize their achievements," he said in his commencement address.

"You have gained a classical education learned with discipline. You have learned character traits and have a sense of value for traditions and heritage. You have learned to be polite and have learned a variety of subjects of study," he said.

Before the graduation ceremony, achievement awards were given to other students for academic excellence, excellent conduct and merit.

Adviser John Hall presented a special award to Mrs. McDowell for her devotion to the school and its students.

Mrs. McDowell has been with Carden-Lee since it opened and is a trustee of the school.

and local specialists in education for the gifted, will provide "state of the art" information about curriculum and activities for encouraging and developing creativity in accelerated students, Dr. Searle said.

The focus of the conference will be to train teachers, parents and administrators to understand and work with gifted and talented students in the public school system, said Dr. Serle. Another goal is to create an environment in schools, homes and communities to accommodate the gifted.

Feldhusen will discuss means of determining whether a student is gifted as well as study and instructional strategies. He will also demonstrate ways of working with gifted and talented students.

Vernon B. Watkins and Richard W. West of Science Research Associates will provide a display of the latest computer hardware and software developed for the gifted.

Carolyn Schuback, state PTA president for the gifted and talented student, and Barbara Swicord, curriculum director for Salt Lake City School District's Horizon program will describe Salt Lake's academic program for upper elementary gifted students. They will suggest ways to implement gifted programs in other districts.

Jo Ann Seghini, director of curriculum and coordinator for gifted students in the Jordan School District, and Sherry Wasden, a teacher specialist for Jordan's gifted and talented program, will discuss creation of district programs that encourage cognitive, social and creative development for the gifted child.

Several other speakers with specialties in helping teachers develop programs, encouraging students to expand their potential and working with parents of the gifted will participate in the conference.

The conference will be held in con-
